How do we sell “Local Food” to a “Global City”?

- Find the positive, not the negative
- Know your market
- Know your supply
- Be innovative

The “Food From Home” Project

- Got funding (thank you Friends of the Greenbelt Foundation!)

- Contacted community leaders and held focus groups (eg. identified “foods from home”, target neighbourhoods, language to use, grocers)
- Talked to local grocers
- Engaged leaders in guide design
- Distributed guides (78,000 and counting)

Bringing the Local to the Global

Welcome to Toronto's first-ever guide to locally-grown South Asian food.

Everyone deserves to eat fresh, locally-grown food and to cook with food that tastes like "home". Cooking with products from our local farmers ensures that you get the healthiest, freshest, best quality food possible, at a good price! Have you ever wondered where you can get fresh "food from home"? Well the answer is in your hands.

You can't get more local than Ontario's Greenbelt. Just above Toronto, it makes sense that more and more Greenbelt farms are producing South Asian foods such as eggplant, okra, coriander, green chili & sweet potatoes. This guide tells you where you can find these freshly-picked products, and many more, in your neighbourhood grocery store, your local farmers' market and the Greenbelt farm closest to you. Carry it with you. The more you shop for locally-grown South Asian food, the more our local farmers will produce, ensuring you have fresh food that tastes like home for generations to come.

Why buy local fresh food?

- You will get exceptional taste and freshness
- You will safeguard your family's health
- You will strengthen your local economy
 - You will support our farming neighbours
 - You will reduce your carbon footprint

Food can lose vitamins when it travels long distances. To get the maximum nutritional value from your food, eat fruits and vegetables that are picked by local farmers as fresh as can be!

Ontario's Greenbelt

At 1.8 million acres, Ontario's Greenbelt is the world's largest and most diverse area of protected farmland, forests, wetlands, green space, and vibrant communities. Wrapping around the Golden Horseshoe, these environmental features help to filter our air, provide clean drinking water, cool the planet and produce healthy food. The Greenbelt is vital to providing a high quality of life in Ontario, for today and for generations to come.

What's growing & being raised in the Greenbelt?
